pure areca gardens alone as deserving special treatment at the resettlement. Moreover I submit that if the term "pure areca garden" means a garden which contains arecas only with no admixture of other garden trees the number of such gardens will be very small indeed. The question arises as to how to determine a garden as "areca garden", for the purpose of the order quoted in the first sentence, when it contains areca as also other recognised garden trees. I have defined an areca garden as one in which the number of arecas taken by themselves is sufficient to classify the land as garden and I request to be informed if this meets with the Board's approval.
